It seems that it is not enough to have a good idea or insight. One needs, like Schoenberg, the appreciation and courage to develop the idea systematically, make its objects mathematically presentable by giving them names, and give them much

exposure in many papers.